correct.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Do you think it's good policy to have somebody who doesn't live in an area, has no connection to it whatsoever except, you said, they'd have to have a plot in the ground?

SENATOR CUDABACK: Um-hum, um-hum.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: They'd have to have plot...

SENATOR CUDABACK: Right.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...somewhere in the...

SENATOR CUDABACK: Plot, or own...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: ...jurisdiction of this...

SENATOR CUDABACK: You have to own land or else he must...he wants to be buried in that cemetery.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Do you have to just express a desire to be buried there, or you'd have to have purchased a piece of ground?

SENATOR CUDABACK: You must own at least, however long you are, whether you're six foot long or ten foot long or wide or whatever, you must own a plot in that cemetery. Simple.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Do they, in your part of the country, sell parts that vary in length and width?

SENATOR CUDABACK: They used to, but we...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Standardized it?

SENATOR CUDABACK: ...changed that, in my particular case.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: So, it's standard...yours? Just yours?

SENATOR CUDABACK: Just mine.
